NORTH CAROLINA PHI BETA LAMBDA HISTORY

In the spring of 1954, Dr. James L. White and several farsighted business educators established the North Carolina Chapter of FBLA-PBL, Inc. Twenty high school and college chapters were pioneers in Dr. White's dream of establishing Future Business Leaders of America-Phi Beta Lambda (FBLA-PBL) in every business education program in the state. In 1969, the state chapter was divided into separate divisions.

The statistical data illustrating North Carolina Phi Beta Lambda's membership record for the past years is located in Appendix 1.

The North Carolina State Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda (NCPBL) has been fortunate to attract dedicated leadership from its local chapter advisers to serve as State Advisers. Historically they include: Ms. Joyce Cherry, Lenoir Community College, 1969-1971; Mr. Albert Gaskill, Campbell University, 1971-1974; Ms. Geraldine Michael Smith, Wingate University, 1974-1979; and Mr. Terry C. Lowrance, Durham Technical Community College, and Dr. Robert N. Simmons, Lenoir-Rhyne College, as State Co-Advisers for the period 1979-1993. From 1994-2003, Mr. Lowrance served as State Adviser. From 2003-2006, Mr. Ron Eggers, Barton College, served as State Adviser. Mr. Dan Hazlett, Stanly Community College, was named State Adviser in 2006. Ms. Mary Jo Nason, North Carolina Department of Public Instruction, serves as FBLA-PBL State Chair.

In addition to state chapter continuity and leadership provided by the role of the state adviser, North Carolina has also been fortunate to have five individuals serving as directors who provide task specialization as members of the State Committee. The director positions and individuals having served in those positions are as follows:

Leadership Development Director:

Ms. Kathy Toler, Asheville-Buncombe Tech. Community College, 2008-present
Ms. Susan Stinson, Mitchell Community College, 2006-2008

State Chapter activities have been enhanced by the establishment of the NCPBL State Professional Division. Formerly, the State Alumni Association (which was formed in 1976), the Professional Division (PD) membership is open to all individuals interested in promoting PBL goals. Members may include employers, educators, parents, businesspersons, PBL alumni, program supporters, or any person who wishes to contribute to the growth and development of the association and membership. Professional Division officers have contributed to the success of Phi Beta Lambda in North Carolina by serving on the State Executive Council and assisting with the state conferences through conducting seminars, judging competitive events, and providing valuable assistance with the State Award Program. In addition, Professional Division members support the state chapter by attending National Leadership Conferences. The Professional Division continues to be at the forefront of membership nationally, winning numerous National Largest State Chapter Professional Division Membership First Place awards. The Professional Division Membership History is located in Section 10.

STATE CHAPTER STRUCTURE AND OPERATIONS ORGANIZATIONAL STRUCTURE

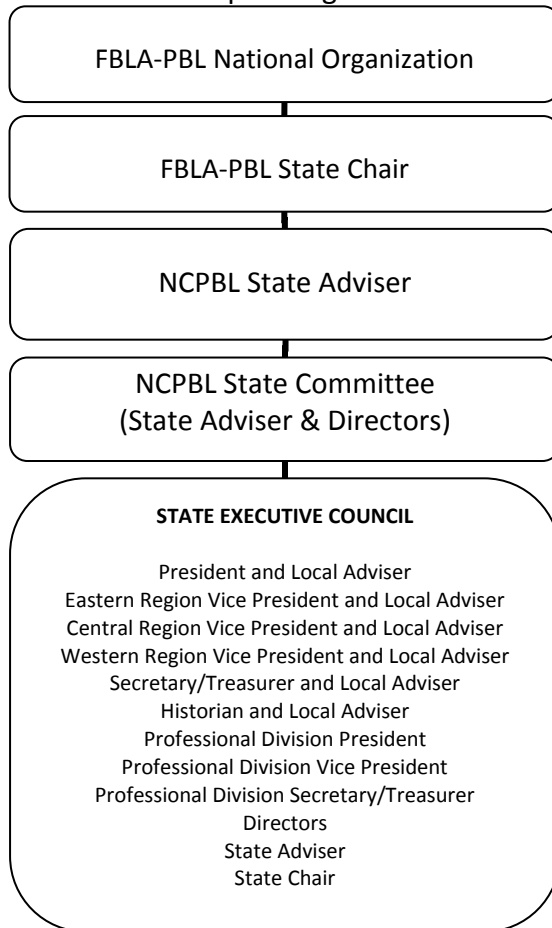

The organizational structure of the State Chapter is consistent with that of the national association. The State Chapter is comprised of all local chapters chartered within the state. The State Executive Council provides the leadership necessary for sustaining the State Chapter. See State Chapter organization structure below.

STATE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Activities and projects of the North Carolina State Chapter are directed by the State Executive Council. The Council is comprised of the state officers and their local chapter advisers, the state adviser, the state chair, the directors, and the state professional division officers. Council meetings are conducted according to Robert's Rules of Order (latest edition).

Four official Council meetings are held during the year with an extensive officer orientation and training program conducted at the beginning of the membership year. The State Secretary/Treasurer records detailed minutes for each Council meeting and for the State Leadership Conference. Copies of the Council minutes are available to all local chapters upon request and on the state Web site.

NCPBL State Chapter Organizational Chart

SECTION 3 – GENERAL INFORMATION

FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

The State Adviser and the State Secretary/Treasurer prepare financial statements for each Executive Council Meeting throughout the year. Financial statements are presented to the general state membership during the business session at the State Leadership Conference. A State Chapter financial report is made to the national association annually, and an annual review of the financial records is conducted. The State Chapter operates within a budget, approved during the Spring Executive Council meeting. Disbursement of funds is made according to the guidelines of the budget. Extraordinary and non-budgeted items must receive approval of the Executive Council prior to disbursement of funds.

REGIONAL STRUCTURE

The State Chapter is organized into three geographical regions across the state in order to promote communication, growth, and activities development. A Vice President is elected from each of the three regions to serve in a regional coordination role with the entire State Chapter. To promote activities at the regional level, several categories of awards are presented at the regional meetings during the State Leadership Conference.

STATE CHAPTER GOALS

An extensive set of goals for the State Chapter is established as a plan of action for each year. Section 01 includes a complete listing of the current year's goals, which were developed at the Spring State Executive Council meeting. Local chapters are encouraged to develop their own goals to complement those of the state organization.

STATE NEWSLETTER

Two editions of the state newsletter, entitled The NCPBL Executive Edge, are published during the year. The State Historian, in conjunction with the Publications Director, prepares and distributes the newsletters to members through their local chapters, to State Professional Division members, and to other local, state, and national individuals interested in Phi Beta Lambda in North Carolina.

LOCAL CHAPTER BUSINESS ADVISORY COUNCIL

Working closely with a business advisory council is one of the best ways to prepare Phi Beta Lambda members for meaningful jobs after graduation. The experience gained in dealing with businesspeople can be invaluable. Businesspeople quickly become aware of students' potential as future employees--not to mention the effect an advisory council can have on improving your chapter's total program. The council members can assist officers, members, and advisers by serving as a liaison with the business community. Invite advisory council members to your chapter's major functions and special meetings when planning chapter projects. An advisory council can be particularly helpful in civic projects, appearances before civic and business associations, national FBLA-PBL Week, community-wide sales, publicity campaigns, field trips, professional speakers, competitive events, local media coverage, scholarships, and national project tie-ins.

Advisory council size can vary according to chapter needs and community interest. The council's function, as the title implies, is to serve the chapter in an advisory capacity, aiding chapter officers, members, and advisers in assuring that meaningful, worthwhile, significant, and successful chapter activities serve the school and the business community.

HOW TO FORM YOUR BUSINESS ADVISORY COUNCIL

Every community has civic-minded individuals; the objective is to stimulate that civic-mindedness by telling the right people that we are the right organization for them to support.

1. Make a list of those in your community you would like to include on your council. List representatives from major companies, small businesses, and organizations such as the Jaycees, the Rotary Club, the Lion's Club; representatives from the local media (radio, TV, newspapers); school administrators; representatives from the mayor's office or city council.
2. Next, appoint a business contact committee within your chapter. This committee's job is to visit the representatives on the list. PERSONAL CONTACT is the key factor in convincing others to work with you. Working with students can give businesspeople valuable input and ideas for the future. It can give them a new perspective, enhance their image, and provide good publicity. It can provide the businessperson with input into the students' education and therefore help to prepare students become better employees in the future.

3. Develop a fact sheet about Phi Beta Lambda. It should be no more than one page (brevity increases the chances of it being read) and should be left with the representative.
4. Once you are in the door, your selling job begins. Explain what Phi Beta Lambda is, what it means to you, how it benefits you, how being involved with Phi Beta Lambda can help the businessperson, and why you need his or her help. A Phi Beta Lambda flip chart is an excellent aid to take along on this visit. It acts as a visual aid to help the businessperson remember what is said; it helps the student remember what to say; and it lends a professional touch to the visit.
5. Remember to tell the representative that your chapter is willing to help him or her. Ask for suggestions on how you could work together.
6. Explain how suggestions, ideas, and input into your chapter's plans and programs can provide active, firsthand experiences and insights into the working world of business. Ask if he or she would serve on your advisory council. Be sure to tell him or her names of others who are willing. Let him or her know what projects your chapter has been involved in, and what plans you have for the future. Explain about the "American Enterprise" project. Invite him or her to a chapter meeting.

Once your advisory council has been formed, call a special meeting to introduce the council members to your chapter and school officials. Take photographs of this event and write a news release for local newspapers (and the PBL BUSINESS LEADER and State Newsletter) about your new advisory council, listing its members and their backgrounds.

Invite advisory council members to all major chapter functions and call special meetings of the council when major chapter projects are being planned.

The Advisory Council itself can be a good public relations tool for Phi Beta Lambda. Its suggestions, ideas, and input into your chapter's plans and programs can provide active, firsthand experiences and insights into the working world of business. Show appreciation at the end of the year by honoring advisory council members at a special banquet.

CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

The projects listed below have all been used successfully by one or more Phi Beta Lambda chapters. Variations to these activities can also be employed, but it should be remembered that the more members involved in a project or participating in an activity, the more successful it is likely to be. Remember also, when selecting project ideas, to vary the types of activities; such as service, professional, fundraising, and social.

SERVICE PROJECTS

Chapter service projects provide an opportunity for student participation within the community. Involvement in such projects represents a planned gift of time and/or money made by your chapter to benefit the community. Service projects can strengthen your chapter. As members work together, they become aware of themselves, their responsibilities as citizens, and their roles as future business leaders. Students will recognize that business plays an important role in meeting the service needs of the community.

It may not be easy to decide upon a service project. Considerable time, thought, and discussion are usually necessary to reach a final decision. Know your community and what is really needed, then have your members choose the project(s) they feel will be of greatest service. Depending upon the project, it may be possible to work with a nearby FBLA-PBL chapter.

Examples of service projects:

- * Join Hands Day
- * Clean-up day
- * Collection of canned items for the needy at Thanksgiving
- * Christmas parties for needy children or elderly
- * Sponsoring Red Cross Bloodmobiles, etc.
- * Sponsoring March of Dimes (MOD) projects
- * Sponsoring projects for other charitable organizations.

The national Phi Beta Lambda publication, THE BUSINESS LEADER, as well as the national Chapter Management Handbook, contains additional suggestions for successful activities.

PROFESSIONAL PROJECTS

Phi Beta Lambda is a co-curricular, integral part of the educational system. Professional activities are tools of instruction, which reinforce what members learn in the classroom and/or on the job.

Examples of professional projects:

- Bulletin boards
- Business tours
- Career Day
- Chamber of Commerce, civic

- Display of awards
- Films
- In-service workshops
- Parliamentary procedure seminars
- Scholarships and service organizations
- Slide presentations
- Speakers
- Travel

FUND-RAISING PROJECTS

Fund-raising projects can be the most challenging events for a Phi Beta Lambda chapter. The two primary reasons for a fund-raising project are to strengthen the efforts of a service project and to add to the chapter treasury for future events.

It takes time, work, and planning to carry out successful fund-raising projects. Moneymaking projects are limited only by the willingness and imagination of the chapter members in planning and sponsoring the projects.

Examples of fund-raising projects:

SALES

- Candy
- Jewelry
- Cheese
- Bake Day
- Magazines
- Plants
- Raffles
- Pizza
- Stationery
- Fruit
- Rummage
- Coffee/doughnut products
- O-Grams (candy-o-grams)
- Tom Wat

OTHER

- Concessions at athletic events
- Monte Carlo Night
- Community Calendars
- Word Processing for others
- Car washes
- Dances
- Making birthday cakes

LEADERSHIP CONFERENCES

Whether on the regional, state, or national level, the purpose of any leadership conference is to provide worthwhile activities to assist students in leadership development as they prepare to be tomorrow's business leaders.

NCPBL FALL KICK-OFF MEETINGS

Each fall, the NCPBL Executive Council hosts fall meetings for local chapter presidents, officers, and advisers. Begun in 1987, these Kick-Offs preview activities needed by officers and advisers to plan local projects and programs effectively. The Executive Council and the Leadership Development Director select a site in various locations and develop the program. September is the suggested date for Fall Kick-Off Meetings.

NCPBL FALL LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE (FLDC)

The Fall Leadership Development Conference is designed for all local chapter PBL members. Sessions are held to explain and review the programs, projects, conferences, and activities of PBL on the local, state, and national level. A time in late October/early November is the suggested date for FLDC.

The state FLDC began in 1975 as a planning and sharing time for officers and advisers, with a gathering of nearly 50 PBLers on the UNC-Greensboro campus. Each vice president works with the Leadership Development Director to secure the physical facilities necessary (hotel accommodations, meeting rooms, meal functions, etc.); the Leadership Development Director is responsible for planning the FLDC program and coordinating publicity.

An award is given to the chapter with the largest chapter delegation in attendance.

In 1986, the "President's Award for Membership Recruitment" and the "NCPBL Non-Trivia Contest" were instituted. For the President's Award, chapters prepare a display of materials used for membership recruitment. These displays are judged by the NCPBL President, the Professional Division President, and the designated Regional Vice President. The "Non-Trivia Contest" is conducted by the Professional Division as a means of encouraging local chapter representatives to learn more about the state and national organizations. A study guide from which questions will be taken is mailed to each chapter, and three-member teams (not to include state officers or previous contest participants) participate in preliminary rounds. Three teams (the highest-scoring team from each of the three regions) advance to the final round of competition. Specifics on both activities are included in the FLDC registration materials. A chronology of Fall Leadership Development Conferences is located in Appendix 1.

NATIONAL FALL LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE (NFLC)

National Fall Leadership Conferences are held throughout the country during November. These conferences consist of general sessions, workshops, and networking opportunities. Delegates from FBLA and PBL attend the same conference general sessions, although separate "breakout" sessions for PBLers are planned. The emphasis is on leadership training and exposure to national FBLA-PBL programs. Charlotte was the site of the national conferences 1989 and 1993 and Greensboro was host in 1999, 2001, and 2005. Registration materials are sent from the national office to chapters in late summer.

NCPBL WINTER TIP-OFF WORKSHOPS

While the fall Kick-Offs introduce chapter presidents, officers, and advisers to the overall state program for the year, the winter Tip-Offs are organized primarily to provide details on the upcoming State Leadership Conference to those chapter leaders responsible for SLC participation and organization, usually the chapter advisers and president. Chapters may also have a Conference Director position or an officer in charge of the group's involvement at SLC. The Tip-Offs are hosted by the state officers. State Leadership Conference registration packets are distributed and State Executive Council members highlight materials for the upcoming conference. Early February is the suggested time for the Tip-Offs.

STATE LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE (SLC)

The State Leadership Conference is held annually in March or April. The conference includes general sessions, business meetings, competitive events, officer elections, special-interest sessions, awards banquet, and social activities.

Each local chapter may enter up to two participants in each competitive event (with specific exceptions). The first- and second-place winners in all events with a national counterpart (with specific exceptions) are eligible to advance to competition at the National Leadership Conference. (See Section 07 for details.)

Thirteen chapters with a total of 145 delegates attended the first conference. Conference attendance statistics are located in Appendix 1.

SECTION 3 – GENERAL INFORMATION

STATE LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE GENERAL INFORMATION

One of the major projects of the state chapter each year is the State Leadership Conference. This conference provides an opportunity for Phi Beta Lambda members from local chapters across the state to share ideas and challenges. Full conference details, including registration forms and event entry forms, are sent to all chapters approximately six weeks prior to the conference.

Advisers and chapter officers should consider building programs around the competitive events sponsored by the state chapter. These events are designed to improve the abilities of all chapter members in a variety of areas including impromptu speaking, parliamentary procedure, business knowledge and skills, and the preparation of written and oral reports, etc. Every event, if organized and conducted carefully at the local level, can contribute to the personal and professional development of members. The motivation of being selected to represent the local chapter in a particular event at the State Leadership Conference can be exciting and rewarding.

ADMINISTRATION OF EVENTS

Prior to the State Leadership Conference, the State Awards Program Chair will communicate with local chapter advisers regarding the administration of competitive events at the State Leadership Conference. The State Awards Program Coordination Committee is composed of up to eight members appointed by the State Adviser. The State Awards Program Chair, in conjunction with the committee, will distribute materials to event coordinators, collect and verify results, and compile a list of winners at the state conference. Local chapter advisers are expected to assume responsibility for administration of specific events. Each event administrator should be thoroughly familiar with the rules for the event. Judges for all events will be secured under the direction of the State Adviser.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

The following general rules and regulations will apply to all delegates attending the annual leadership conference of the North Carolina State Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda.

1. The State Leadership Conference is open to chapter members, advisers, professional division members, and guests from chapters that are in good standing and have met the dues deadline.
2. All persons attending the conference must register in advance by returning the necessary forms and fees. The conference registration forms must be signed by the chapter adviser. On-site registration is permitted with an additional fee. Advance registration is required for all competitive events.

3. All hotel room reservations will be made by the local chapter directly with the hotel in which the conference will be held. Chapters submitting reservations after the hotel deadline may be subject to alternative accommodations.
4. No conference fees will be refunded, but conference registration may be transferred to another attendee from the chapter.
5. Delegates are expected to attend all general sessions, regional meetings, and leadership seminars of the conference. Advisers are urged to discuss requirements for attending and participating in conference activities with the local chapter delegation prior to the conference.
6. Participants, both students and others, should wear appropriate business attire at all conference activities. Semi-formal, formal wear, or business attire should be worn at the awards banquet. (See NCPBL Conference Dress Code on the last page of this section.)
7. The Executive Council of the North Carolina State Chapter of Phi Beta Lambda fully approves these regulations and reserves the right to discipline delegates for infractions.

NATIONAL LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE (NLC)

The National Leadership Conference is normally held in late June or early July each year in a selected city in the United States. All advisers, members, Professional Division members, and guests are eligible to attend.

The competitive events and activities throughout the conference are designed to stimulate leadership development for tomorrow's business leaders. Many of the sessions are designed to provide a forum for the ideas of student members from across the nation. Others are planned to offer ideas, suggestions, and encouragement from the fields of business, industry, government, and entertainment. Student workshops center around career, professional, and motivational sessions with outstanding activities on each agenda.

The conference also includes the election of national officers, the national awards program, and social activities. At all leadership conferences, advisory committee members and other community business people provide leadership and serve as resource people for the special-interest sessions. Winners are recognized at each level of competition. Students receive certificates and/or plaques; in some events, cash awards are presented.

INSTITUTE FOR LEADERS (IFL)

The Institute for Leaders is the organizational and leadership training session for state and local chapter officers, members, and advisers. Held in conjunction with the National Leadership Conference, this training conference prepares student leaders and members to assume their elected responsibilities and develop valuable life skills. All North Carolina state officers are strongly encouraged to attend the Institute for Leaders.
